Hi Anthony, I just got an email back from PayPal and they basically said that you have a way to refund automatically electronically regardless of what stage the money is in at the present moment, Also, they said that if seller wants, they can even contact the number that they should know for the credit card company (visa), and let them know that seller and buyer have agreed to cancel and then they will take care of PayPal side of things on their side. Please check it over again and do everything you can later. I kind of need the money for something else already and I don't want to be stuck like if you have wedding, then go away for a honeymoon, etc.. I'm sure this coming week will be one of the biggest and busiest weeks in your life, so please just refund the 155 and get me off your back and end this mix-up!! Thanks dude and don't think I'm being rude, I'm not angry and do blame myself! Thanks... -Nick
